

ABSTRACT

An aerosol stream of particles of a conductive material is directed into a via of an integrated circuit device to deposit the conductive material within the via to form a via plug.